

Dramatic Male Youth #3

Are you there, God? It's me. Alex. I have something to say to you. So, I don't know if you're even there and listening right now. But if you are...

I need to ask you:

Why would you go and create
So many problems in the world? So much War. So many killings. Too much discrimination.
Too many forces of evil that wouldn't be around in a world created by a ruler that wasn't as cruel as you.

If you're really up there, WHY

Just WHY

did you have to go and create so many challenges in my own life?

From all the sh#t that my family has had to put up with, to giving me a condition that totally effed up the wires in my brain.

From being bullied and alone in high school, to always feeling alone and depressed too often in my life.

If you're really watching, what's the point in giving us all

so many reasons to doubt your existence in the first place? Even aside from all I already said, science would seemingly prove that the Bible is fiction, while history seems to show That some things do NOT happen for any good reason.
It seems like life is a puzzle that is solved by people rather than

blind faith in ANYTHING, and that nothing really happens after you die, despite what some book written thousands of years ago may claim.

Everything seems to suggest that you are either a fantasy that isn't worth believing, no different from Santa and the Tooth Fairy, or someone who doesn't deserve praise for all the trouble you left for the world that you supposedly created.

So please,
just give me some proof.
Show me that you're real.
Then, and only then,
will my view of the world radically change,
and I will gladly accept you, in the hopes that MAYBE,
JUST maybe,
I will finally find some sort of inner peace.
Because not much else seems to be working for me...
