¶ Among the many entertaining features of next week we must not forget the evening being arranged by the Chilliwack Little Theatre Association. Last year, in the first few months of its existence it ably and amply justified such existence, and one felt a real glow of pride in that this valley had at last both in ambition and achievement a real Little Theatre group. A less ambitious program, but a versatile and popular one nevertheless, will be presented on Thursday, consisting of three one-act plays, one by a well-known Canadian author with setting in the West. With added prestige given by the Governor-General of Canada and his wife, the Little Theatre movement throughout Canada has received a decided impetus—we hope the Chilliwack group will share in this by the patronage and approval shown by local people.
